PENCE SAYS IT'S TIME TO GET TOUGH ON SYRIA

Washington, Oct 8, 2003 - WASHINGTON, DC – U.S. Congressman Mike Pence voted today to give President Bush the tools he needs to impose economic and diplomatic sanctions against Syria. The Syria Accountability and Lebanese Restoration Act passed the House International Relations Committee 33-2.

“Syria is subject to fewer sanctions than any other country listed as a state-sponsor of terrorism,” said Pence. “The time has come to hold Syria accountable for its actions in support of international terrorism.”

The bill states, among other things, that Syria will be held responsible for attacks committed by Hezbollah and that the United States will impede Syria’s ability to support acts of international terrorism and efforts to develop or acquire weapons of mass destruction. The bill also gives the President authority to prohibit exports to Syria.
